

PRESS RELEASE

ReDreamt

Aireborne Theatre Company returns to the Fringe with a newly devised piece of physical theatre. ReDreamt explores the dreams and nightmares of the eight performers to create a collective autobiography. After a previous sell-out run at The Commonplace, Leeds, the show brings new cast-members and material to the Underbelly.

“absolutely magical performances ... fascinating as well as beautiful ... I was mesmerised.” LSRfm.com

Several members of the all-female cast, and co-director Sam Ward, arrive fresh from the National Student Drama Festival and The National Youth Theatre. Also directing is Amy Draper who brings her experience at LAMDA and Bretton Hall to the production. Ward’s original soundtrack and visual arts combine with the cast of musicians, actors and dancers for a freshly eclectic experience. The audience is immersed in a world of the subconscious, at times funny and disturbing, at once familiar and otherworldly.

“for ne’er was dream
so like a waking” The Winter’s Tale III.iii

ReDreamt follows the Company’s highly acclaimed 2005 production Sunday Morning at the Centre of the World ( The Guardian,  Three Weeks), and continues to develop their poetic and challenging approach to storytelling.
